

Personal Profile of Hartford Smith Jr.

Age: Thirty

Marital Status: Married, two children (1 daughter age 7, 1 son, age 1).

Nationality & Cultural Background:

American Negro, born in Fayette, Alabama, July 2, 1937. Attended grammar and high school at Fayette County Training School. Participated in student government, 3 year letterman in two sports -- football and basketball. Graduated as valedictorian of senior class in May of 1955. Awarded scholarship for scholastic achievement by Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia. Attended Morehouse from September of 1955 to June of 1956. Completed basic freshman courses, participated in student government and varsity football. Migrated to Detroit in 1956 in order to find work to supplement educational expenses.

Education:

Transferred to Wayne State University in September of 1956. Majored in Political Science and Public Administration, minors in social and physical sciences. Three year letterman in varsity football. Completed requirements for Bachelors Degree in February of 1960. Attended Law School part time (night school) from September 1960 until Fall of 1963 when accepted for graduate study in the Wayne State University School of Social Work. Completed requirements for Masters Degree in the Group Work Sequence in June of 1965. Completed six additional hours of law after obtaining Masters Degree in Social Work.

Work Experience:

Worked for three and a half years (1960-63) with delinquent boys in the Wayne County Juvenile Court's Youth Home. Was awarded stipend for graduate study by the State of Michigan as a result of my work in the County's Youth Home. Worked for one and a half years as a Child and Youth Worker at the Jewish Community Center. Also had student field experience at the Jewish Community Center and at the Neighborhood Service Organization as a Detached Gang Worker. Upon graduation from the Wayne

State University School of Social Work in 1965, I was hired by the State of Michigan and given the task of developing a cooperative, multi-purpose program combining State and County staff to deal with some of the existing problems between the Wayne County Juvenile Court and the State Department of Social Services in the area of the care, treatment and rehabilitation of delinquent boys and girls. The program became fully operational in 1966 and is called the Screening and Intake Unit. The program of the Unit now encompasses the functions of screening and diagnoses, coordination of State and County resources, community planning and consultation and policy making as it relates to problems of expansion, resources and needed services. At the present time approximately 90% of all juvenile offenders committed to the State from Wayne County are tested, diagnosed, prepared and placed directly into various State facilities throughout Michigan from this Unit. Some youngsters are also placed in the community under private care in their homes, or with new developing programs sponsored by local government or private agencies. At the present time I am the administrative head of this operation.* In this capacity I've worked very closely with the Wayne County Juvenile Court, Detroit Police Department (Youth Bureau and Women's Division), State Training Schools and Halfway Houses, the Childrens Division of Wayne County Department of Social Services, Detroit Public Schools, private agencies and State Mental Health Department. In a given day my liaison, coordinating and "trouble shooting" functions may span the entirety of these various organizations and agencies. At a given point it may be necessary to coordinate the efforts of many of these agencies as it relates to a plan or jurisdictional problem of an individual youngster. Frequently I am in consultation with various agencies both public and private regarding State resources available to assist in the resolution of some of the problems of juvenile delinquency.

*The Unit employs 5 social workers, 3 clerks and one para-professional who are hired by the State plus 1 special education teacher, a clinical psychologist and psychometrist hired by the County.

Since December of 1967 I have been a part time instructor in the Community Organization Sequence at the Wayne State University School of Social Work. My major responsibility was to provide faculty supervision for Community Organization students placed at Representative John Conyers office. In this capacity I have performed the roles of field instructor for the students and liason between the School and Representative Conyers office. Another major area of responsibility aside from the ongoing supervision of students and liason activities was to assist in the laying of the foundation for the development of a community improvement association in the southeastern part of the 1st Congressional District. The multi-purpose nature of the community improvement association will hopefully resolve some of the long standing problems of housing, jobs and social services which afflict the area. It is also hoped that this project will demonstrate to those in influential positions in the political arena the value of community planning and development as espoused by the profession of social work.

During the past year I have also become involved in interpreting social problems and social work via the mass media. I am the co-creator, writer, analyst and commentator for the radio program called Seeds of Discontent. The program has been aired on WDET FM, WXYZ AM and by the National Educational Radio Network. At last reports the program was being aired in 28 states and 82 different cities across the country. The National Council on Social Work Education has asked for additional write ups on the series and asked for a response regarding my opinion as to the feasibility of the use of the tapes in graduate schools of social work. I am in the process of pulling together the tapes of interviews and materials and my own insights gained while doing the program into book form.

I have also been a guest lecturer on Professor Goldner's Social Problems course which was televised on Channel 7's T.V. College.

Community
Affiliations & Activities:

A workshop leader for the NASW and DVR Conference on "The Implications of the Reorganization of HEW as it applies to the Problems of Adolescence," May, 1968.

Field instructor in the Group Work Sequence, Wayne State University School of Social Work, 1966-67 and University of Michigan in 1967.

A Project Director on the Committee for Moore School for Boys -- a voluntary committee concerned with improving community resources available to youth in this school.

Resource person and member of the American Civil Liberties Unions' committee on the rights of children and youth.

A volunteer resource person for Detroit area Boy Scouts training sessions.

A member of the Detroit Interdisciplinary Committee -- a committee devoted to the coordination of agencies dealing with the problem of juvenile delinquency.

ACADEMIC AND PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE:

April 15, 1969 to Present - (joint appointment)

Assistant Professor of Social Work and Director of Wayne State University's Experimental Community Extension Centers (CEC) Program which represents one effort by the University to work with and assist low income ghetto neighborhoods in the inner city by developing a series of educationally relevant,
"outreach" centers. The first such center (the University East Side Center) has been operational since the summer of 1969. It presently provides services for 450 educationally underprivileged citizens in college credit subjects; 550 in general career, educational development, cultural, community problem solving activities; and recreational services for 4,000 low income citizens annually.

The East Side Center has also been used as a laboratory by the University of Michigan and Wayne State for the training of graduate students in Social Work.

In conjunction with Wayne County Community College and the Consumer Research Advisory Council (CRAC) of metropolitan Detroit, the Center has established the Robert Tindal Consumer Education Institute for education and training of community leaders in low income neighborhoods in the City of Detroit. Responsibilities of the director include: overall Community Extension Centers program planning, development, and ongoing management; i.e., study and location of sites for centers, negotiating leasing arrangements, hiring of key staff, budgetary management, mobilization of University resources from various departments and colleges, and staff development training. Also, responsible for appointment of community advisory board and developing working relationships and cooperative ventures with community groups, federal projects and programs such as Detroit's Model Neighborhood and MCHRD. This includes developing contracts and funding proposals for ongoing Community Extension Centers Program and expansion of facilities and programs.

Present duties in the School of Social Work include: teaching of second year Community Social Work Method IV, and collaboration with faculty on Field Instruction and related student-community problems and affairs upon request from the Chairman of the Community Social Work Department.

April - May 1971-72

Upon request of Governor William G. Milliken, accepted post as Vice-Chairman of recently created Youth Parole and Review in the Office of Youth Services, State of Michigan. Later named Chairman of the Board.

Responsibilities included: designing a model parole and review system for Michigan youth classified as delinquent by juvenile courts, conducting public hearings and assisting in the development of preventive community service programs. Consulted with the Director of the Office of Youth Services on strategy for achieving legislative and community support for implementation of new service delivery systems.

December 1967 - April 15, 1969

Assistant Professor, School of Social Work, Wayne State University, taught Community Social Work Methods IV, V, VI. Developed and taught additional course entitled "Systems and Organization in Crime and Delinquency."

Supervised graduate students field training placements in federal legislative area and in University federally funded housing study and planning unit.

1969-70

Appointed Faculty Associate in the Division of Urban Studies, Wayne State University.

1969-

Consultant to Wayne County Community College Board of Trustees.

1968-69

Guest lecturer for T.V. College, WXYZ-TV Regarding crime and delinquency and structure of services in Michigan.

1966-68

Supervisor of graduate student field work training in social group work, Wayne State University.

1965-68

Social Welfare Administrator, State of Michigan Department of Social Services. Planned and developed special diagnostic screening and intake unit for state wards at Wayne County Juvenile Court. Liaison responsibilities between the Juvenile Court, Detroit Police Department, State Aftercare and the Department of Mental Health relative to planning and disposition of cases.

This included admission to Boys' Training School, Girls' Training School and other state units, and the handling of escapees and return cases. Developed case study methods, psychiatric services, academic and psychological testing and short-term counseling services for youth and family.

1964-65

Graduate student experience at the Neighborhood Service Organization as Detach Gang Worker with male delinquent gangs in Mexican American and Black ghetto areas of Detroit.

1963-64

Youth Worker, Jewish Community Center- Supervised Meyers Road Division youth and children's group, helped plan program and services, and provided special counseling services where required.

1960-63
